The END of them

I wrote this during a party where the music was so loud that i couldn't hear my own thoughts but I think it's good enough, I might BETA read it later though... well, enjoy and pls reiew!

The vile smell of ash and blood hung heavily in the air. smoke rose up, shifting like ghosts in the breeze and obscuring the skies. screams of anguish and cries of war filled the atmosphere of the battlefield. scorching flames howled and screeched all around her.

* * *

>Gathering all the strength left in her being, she readied her arms and pushed against the floor. Along with the smoke she previously inhaled, a whimper left her lips as tears freely cascaded down her porcelain-like cheeks. Ignoring the pain and will to vomit that came from her wounds she finally stood. recovering her breath, she took in her surrounding that had drastically changed during her unconscious state. wiping the tears and dirt on her face with the sleeves of her, now, tattered clothing.

Lucy's mind finally caught up to the moment as panic and grief mercilessly flooded her being to the very core. Frantically, she scanned her surrounding, having her hearts drop at every recognizable figure that lifelessly laid on the ground and among ruins. But she had to leave grief and sadness for later, at the moment there was one person who she desperately yearned to see.

Finally, she spotted him, nothing but his silhouette but she knew it was him. The fire igniting in his direction had been torn asunder, as if inviting her towards him. An invitation she would not decline.

With one last deep exhale to keep her breath from hitching, she broke into a sprint. As she approached him and the shadows dissipated she gasped when she remembered.

He was E.N.D, Zeref's strongest demon. His body was dotted by scales and black marks, his hands now bore claws, from his head twisted horns and sprouting from his back were two leathery dark wings.

The memories of how he obtained this form were blurry. All she remembered was them fighting against a member of the spriggan 12, Invel, they had been losing drastically when, suddenly, Something unknown happened to Natsu, he started screaming and whimpering, then laughing and roaring. His body had been encompassed by a dark scary aura as he started changing, morphing into something else. His power grew immensely and, before they knew it, he killed the enemy with a crazed grin plastered on his feature. He had also started attacking allies and enemies alike. But lucy, on the other hand, had not been target yet, as if he was purposely avoiding damage towards her. The last memory she remembered before her word obscured to pitch darkness was the slight tremble that Her best friends mad grin had.

"Natsuâ€¦" It was nothing but a whisper, but she knew he heard her. He always did.

Slowly, as if unsure or scared, the pinkette twisted his body in her direction, his wings moving in his wake.

"Lucyâ€¦?" he sounded so broken. he looked- no he was broken. his eyes glistened from fresh fallen tears, his green-onyx orbs seemed almost innocent like a child entirely introduced to something new and horrifying.

"Natsuâ€¦"

" I don't understandâ€¦" his gaze went back to his blood stained claws, his whole body was shaking. "Iâ€¦ killedâ€¦ them..." he clutched his head with both hands as a crazed smile made its way on his face, maniacal laughter bubbled inside him until it escaped and he started cackling.

Lucy's eyes had gone wide in horror as she realised what was happening. Her best friend was on the brink of madness, mayhem was possessing his very being. Reluctantly she extended her arm in his direction as she slowly approached.

"Natus, listen you-"

"No!" immediately he retracted as if she was poison, his eyes wide and full of panic. Madness forgotten. "Don't touch me' I'll hurt you!"

Lucy brought her arm back to her side and clenched her fist. Concern for the dragon slayer overwhelming her. "Natsu, you won't hurt me, just please let m-"

"No! You don't understand I'm Monster!" Determination flashed in his eyes right before the crazy glint was back, his lips curved into a maniacal smirk as he stood up. "And I'll do exactly what a Monster should."

At that moment the blonde forgot all about the pain and fear as realisation dawned upon her. hurriedly, she ran towards him before he could disappear from her life again. She had suffered enough dealing with his absence for one year, she couldn't take more.

Natsu extended his large leathery wings, his face losing all emotions as he stared at Lucy's approaching figure and right before she could make contact, Fire lashed out from him. It made instant contact with the londe and sent her hurtling back and face down into the crumbles.

As the Lucy desperately lifted her face from the ground, all she could see was the lone shadow of Natsu already flying high in the skies. At the at moment, both of them knewâ€¦

That had been the end of them...
